CONTEMPORARY GLASS EXHIBITION SHOWCASES CENTRAL SAINT MARTINS GRADUATES

Through The Looking Glass is an exhibition of contemporary glass at Chelsea Gallery by seven exciting new artists who have recently graduated from the Postgraduate Glass course at Central Saint Martins:

Lucy Batt
Maria Fagan
Brett Manley
Alex R

with

Iain Gutteridge
Amanda J. Simmons
Pippa Stacey

Chelsea Gallery is situated above the library in the Old Town Hall on the Kings Road. The show runs from 11-22 October 2005, and will coincide with Chelsea Crafts Fair which also takes place in the Old Town Hall.

This will be a wonderful opportunity to meet these upcoming artists, who share a passion for glass which is reflected in their latest work on show. From intricately textured bowls and vessels to wall panels in vibrant colours, it is the interaction between glass and light which is the source of inspiration for this work.

All work is for sale, and there will be glass to suit every pocket, from small wall tiles and jewellery right up to lightboxes and larger sculptural pieces.

Through The Looking Glass will entice you with sumptuous glass in glittering colours, textures and patterns, which demonstrates the range of possibilities inherent in this fascinating and magical medium.
